Markets repriced resilience most; the public sought it least