Markets repriced resilience; the public did not seek it